

Educational Concerns for Hunger Organization (ECHO)

NACCC Mission Partner Spotlight

April 2025

Visit www.echonet.org to learn more!

For more than four decades, ECHO has been equipping and empowering hungry families with education, resources, and the life-giving grace of God.

ECHO introduces sustainable plants, techniques, and technologies to farmers around the world who are struggling to feed their families, empowering small-scale farming families to thrive.

ECHO equips Indigenous churches, pastors, and local schools with practical knowledge and skills that they can share, helping them spread hope and improve the well-being of their communities.

Beyond providing tools and training, ECHO distributes more than 300 varieties of seeds every year, choosing seeds that are tailored to thrive in the region in which they'll be planted.

